VOLUME 90-NUMBER 30 | Deadline: 3 p.m. Monday | APPOMATTOX, VA.-TIMES-VIRGINIAN-JULY 29, 1981 | Phone: 352-5215 | ONE SECTION - 16 PAGES

A 17-YEAR-OLD APPOMATTOX County youth received minor injuries Sunday evening when the car in which he was riding left the roadway and struck a utility pole. The accident occurred at 6:45 p.m. on the two lane section of Route 460 between Route 1, Appomattox, and Route 24, Concord. The driver of the car, Mark Allen Martin of Route 1, Appomattox, was attempting another vehicle in the east-bound lane of Route 460 Sunday evening at 6 p.m. when his left front tire went off the road and he lost control of the car while attempting to steer back onto the roadway. The 1980 Chevrolet received extensive damage, according to police.

Parvovirus: new disease in county

By FRANCES H. FAULETTE

Parvovirus infection, a new disease in Appomattox County, is here in force.

Dog owners should be on the alert for symptoms of this highly contagious virus infection which causes severe vomiting, diarrhea and intestinal damage and even death, especially in puppies.

Parvoviruses are the smallest DNA viruses known to infect animals. They are found in the nucleus of dividing cells. Samples from all parts of the United States, including Appomattox County, have been found to contain DNA and develop only in the nucleus of dividing cells.

Presently the origin of parvoviral enteritis is unknown. The most obvious signs of the disease are: (1) Vomiting, often severe; (2) Rapid Dehydration; (3) Diarrhea, feces are yellow-gray color. However, fluid stools either streaked with blood or entirely blood; (4) Anorexia, a very high percentage of these dogs will not eat; (5) Depression, an infection of the parvovirus causes the animal to appear dull in opinion but very few if any of these dogs will lie down and sleep; (6) Dehydration, if they are eviscerated at the time.

"BITEY," SHORT FOR DYNAMITE, is the center of attention as his owner, Jim Pugh, (right), and Dr. William Burger, (left) give him some TLC. Bitey was found with parvovirus infection when he was eleven weeks old and is completely recovered; the dog became ill on Sunday morning and was brought to the veterinarian's office that afternoon. "Bitey" was treated for an aggressive case of parvovirus infection and appears sure to recover from Parvovirus infection. (Photo by Bill Sherrod).

Once a dog has gone through the disease (4) Rapid Dehydration, the dog will have a permanent immunity to the disease.

Parvovirus infection has an incubation period of 4 to 7 days. Symptoms are observed in some animals, especially puppies, as early as the initial sign and any deviation of temperature in older dogs.

Dogs affected with the parvovirus, although clinical signs very rarely recover completely. Death is infrequent if treatment is prompt; within hours puppies three to sixteen weeks that appear in perfect health can go into a "knock-like" coma and die from myocarditis (heart disease) form of the disease and enteritis of the intestines is usually fatal; about 90 percent of the infected dogs die.

The fecal material that is passed by infected animals is unusually high in virus particles and is the major source of infection.

According to Dr. Bill Burger, parvovirus infection will spread primarily through the dog-to-dog contact with the feces and therefore, close dog to dog contact is a very important factor in the disease. It can also be carried on the skin, clothing and shoes of humans.

The fecal material that is passed by infected animals is unusually high in virus particles and is the major source of infection.

Parvovirus is transmitted by the ingestion of material contaminated with the feces of infected animals. The virus is very resistant to many disinfectants. The virus can remain viable in the environment for months and even years after the initial outbreak. Proper cleaning is extremely important.

Is there parvovirus in this county?

Yes, according to Dr. Burger, parvovirus is common household in this county. Dr. Burger has had 1 to 10 clients a day at his office with parvovirus infection. Dr. Burger has also had clients from Lynchburg, Amherst, Buckingham, Rustburg, Lynchburg and Campbell County with parvovirus infection.

Dr. Burger, "is that a very high percentage of these dogs will not eat; (5) Depression, an intentional parasites such as hookworms, roundworms, and "other" is proof that a dog, receiving prompt veterinary treatment, can recover from Parvovirus infection. (Photo by Bill Sherrod).

The Depot, the old railroad station, is indeed a special place to many Appomattox residents. Depot Dramatics, under the co-directorship of Joyce Sweet and Rush Hutcherson, will present a musical production, "Guys And Dolls" beginning tonight, Wednesday, and continuing through Saturday evening.

A musical, "Guys And Dolls" is the story of a notorious gambler and a very proper mission lass who fall in love with each other and they have to beat the odds.

Depot Dramatics have worked hard to make this performance a success. The audience will be treated to such musical numbers as "Luck Be A Lady" and "Bushel And A Peck" and of course, the famous theme, "Guys And Dolls."

Admission for the performance beginning at eight o'clock is $3.00 for adults and $2.00 for children under 10 years of age. For reservations, please call 352-8001.

Burnett inducted into Hall of Fame

Col. Vincent "Spunk" Burnett, of near Concord, was notified this week that he has been inducted into the Virginia Aviation Hall of Fame.

Burnett received notification in a letter from Morton W. Lester, president of the organization's Historical Society.

Official induction will take place at Danville Municipal Airport in Danville, Va., on Aug. 22 in connection with the Virginia Aviation Trophy Air Show which will be held at the Danville airport.

Burnett's name will be inscribed on a bronze plaque which will be displayed in the Virginia Aviation Hall of Fame.

Shortly thereafter, Burnett received another prestigious award, a letter from Morton W. Lester, president of the Aerobatic Committee of the National Historic Aircraft Society.

Lester informed Burnett that he was to be inducted into the Aerobatic Hall of Fame.

Burnett, a 1936 graduate of Virginia Military Institute, was instrumental in developing the aerobatic competition in Cuba.

Aerobatic competition involves maneuvers which are performed by aircraft in competition.

Burnett, who first began flying in 1932 at the age of 15, was awarded his private pilot's license by the late Orville Wright.

During World War II, Burnett helped train Army Air Corps pilots at Craig Field in Selma, Ala.

Burnett, who flew a B-25 bomber, a medium bomber which was famed by young pilots due to its high performance, is a member of the Virginia Aviation Hall of Fame.

Dear Friends:

Well, the royal wedding is over and I'm sure you all saw it. Frankly, I do not think there was a more beautiful wedding in London, which dominates the nuptials of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer.

Have a copy of The Windsor Spencer saga? I do, thanks to Rev. Ralph Barbee, brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Smith, Gettysburg and Hershey, Pa., who was in London to get a copy of a newspaper of this country. They report a most pleasant, reception there in a major tourist attraction.

Also have a copy of The Peak for a copy of The Waterbury, Connecticut AM-ERICAN.

The weekly traveled the most, with Virginia a close second. Virginia Peak for a copy of The Waterbury, Connecticut AM-ERICAN.
